Who we are?

We are part of the Habitat for Humanity International network, with a presence in over 70 countries around the world. We promote opportunities for families and communities in vulnerable situations to access more adequate and sustainable housing and habitats.

We have been working in Paraguay since 1998, through strategic alliances, coordinating efforts with families, community leaders, government institutions, the private sector, and civil society organizations.

Our approach

We focus on addressing the needs for new housing solutions or improvements, critical access to clean water, sanitation, and hygiene, while promoting sustainable urban development, comprehensive settlement improvements, risk reduction, and resilience to disasters.

Through constructive technical assistance and microfinance, we place people at the center of our programs, taking into account their capacities, vulnerabilities, and needs, to understand the root causes of systemic inequities in the housing ecosystem.

In this way, we want people to thrive, living with dignity, security, and resilience through housing, experiencing equitable development that generates a positive impact on social, educational, economic, and cultural opportunities.

We organize our work around two main axes:

Acciones colectivas
para ciudades
inclusivas.

Collective actions for inclusive cities

Innovación para el desarrollo urbano
sostenible.

Innovation for sustainable urban development

Contributing to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)

Adequate housing is a driver for achieving 5 of the 17 SDGs. Our efforts contribute to improving health, education, the economy, and reducing inequalities and risks.
